Economics Time Series

We have renewed our subscription to International Financial Statistics on CD-ROM. The series, which is updated regularly with cumulative CD-ROMs, is mounted on a workstation at the Multimedia Resources Center, 1st Floor, Main Library, where with an IBM-formatted diskette, you can download data for academic use. Use of these data is restricted to UCI students, faculty and staff. There is an online manual to help you use this database: http://sun3.lib.uci.edu/~dtsang/ifscd.htm.

Field (California) Polls

As a member of the Field Institute's Academic Consortium, we have a standing order to the California Polls, with data files going back to 1956. They are downloadable from our Web-based Data Page: http://sun3.lib.uci.edu/~dtsang/ssdauci/index.htm#field. Machine-readable codebooks, where available, are also posted on the site. (Paper codebooks are available in the Main Library stacks at Call Number HN 90 P8 C34.) The Data Page contains other downloadable data, with usage restricted to UCI students, faculty and staff.
Los Angeles Times Polls
We have begun a subscription to data from the Roper Center, which archives and distributes polling data such as the Los Angeles Times Polls. Let us know if you want us to acquire specific polls. A listing of recent Los Angeles Times Polls, with study abstracts, can be found at: http://www.latimes.com/news/timespoll/.
Currently, we have the following Los Angeles Times Polls: Vietnamese in Southern California (1994); Filipinos in Southern California (1995); and Issues Facing Ethnic Chinese (1997). They are downloadable, with associated documentation, from our Data Page: http://sun3.lib.uci.edu/~dtsang/ssdauci/index.htm#latp. The Data Page contains other downloadable data, with usage restricted to UCI students, faculty and staff.

Voter News Service Exit Polls
Our online Data Page also includes selected data from the latest Voter News Service Exit Poll, Voter News Service General Election Exit Polls, 1998 [ICPSR 2078], as well as some earlier polls. They are downloadable, with associated documentation, from our Data Page: http://sun3.lib.uci.edu/~dtsang/ssdauci/index.htm#vns. The Data Page contains other downloadable data, with usage restricted to UCI students, faculty and staff.

Using Data in Undergraduate & Graduate Classes You Teach
Using data in classes you teach is becoming easier. Here are some Web-sites where datasets and/or software are available for evaluation for by academics, or where fellow instructors have put up datasets you can freely download.

From the Cal State system, a number of enterprising faculty members across the system have joined together to put up on the Web: The California State University Social Sciences Research and Instructional Council (SSRIC) Teaching Resources Depository Home Page: http://www.csbak.edu/ssric/. Here are teaching modules with freely downloadable datasets useful for social science classes, together with documentation. The faculty members have also worked on an SPSS workbook: SPSS for Windows 7.5: A Basic Tutorial, by Richard Shaffer, Edward E. Nelson, Nan Chico, John L. Korey, Elizabeth Ness Nelson, and James Ross (McGraw-Hill, 1998): http://www.csbak.edu/ssric/Modules/SPSS/SPSFirst.htm.

Social Science Data Analysis Network: http://www.psc.isr.umich.edu/SSDAN/

A private company, MicroCase Corp., has pioneered with proprietary software, packaged datasets, making teaching much easier. A trial version of its software, the MicroCase Analysis System, is downloadable for 45-day use: http://www.microcase.com/analysis/mc45des.html. Using datasets from ICPSR under a special "partnership" arrangement, the corporation converts the data to its MicroCase format; these datasets are included with textbooks and workbooks it distributes covering the disciplines of political science, sociology, anthropology, criminology, and research methods & statistics. The Software-Based Textbooks and Workbooks page is at: http://www.microcase.com/textbook/ancill.html. Its holdings of datasets, Microcase Data Archive, is at: http://www.microcase.com/archive/archmenu.html.

Free Datasets
Latin American Survey Data Bank
Our membership in the Roper Center also provides access to other polls beyond the Los Angeles Times Polls (see previous page). These include surveys from other countries that have been archived at the Roper Center. One of the most comprehensive collections there is the Latin American Survey Data Bank, or Banco Latinoamericano de Encuestas de Opinion Publica. Countries include: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico, Peru, Venezuela. For more information, click on Data Sources link and then the Latin American Survey Data Bank link on the UCI Social Science Data Archive home page: http://go.fast.to/data. You can click on the Requesting Data link on the UCI Social Sciences Data Archive home page to request any data. Our Roper membership provides access for UCI faculty, staff and students only.

Japan Data Archive
The Roper Center also maintains the Japan Data Archive, comprising two components: JPOLL and the Japanese Data Library. JPOLL is an online database of question-level information, currently free to all users. The Japanese Data Library contains the actual data. For more information, click on the Data Sources link and then the Japan Data Archive link on the UCI Social Sciences Data Archive home page: http://go.fast.to/data. You can click on the Requesting Data link on the UCI Social Sciences Data Archive home page to request any data. Our Roper membership provides access for UCI faculty, staff and students only.

There is a link there to the Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) home page. UCI is a member of ICPSR with full access to its huge archive of data holdings. There are also other Data Sources listed. For assistance in your quest for social science data, or if you need an ICPSR or other dataset, click on the Requesting Data link on the UCI Data Archives home page, or e-mail your request to the UCI Social Science Data Files Librarian, Dan Tsang: dtsang@uci.edu.

Citations to Data-Based Research
Scientific research being a collaborative effort, building on earlier scholarly work, we periodically ask UCI faculty members and students who have used social science data in their research to send us citations to their scholarly output. We also search indexes. The following are some of the UCI academics whose articles used data from our collection or elsewhere; we list the dataset(s) used in the study.
